

My family has been very satisfied with Indiana's "Do Not Call" process. No longer are we harassed at dinner time. Anyone wishing to promote their products or services are free to mail me, advertise in the media, or find other ways rather than invading my home. As my husband and I have different last names, we always had even TWICE as many calls as most families. Please do not allow the positive efforts of our state government to be overturned by corporations that do not have our best interests at heart. Our lives are already far too "available" to marketing efforts. Please allow us to control this aspect of our lives. Thank you.
